COURSE DESCRIPTION
Course objectives	This course is based on the structure and learning outcomes of European Transport- and Tourism Law within the EBFLA program. The student will comprehend diverse theoretical and empirical knowledge in the field of European and Croatian tourism and transport law, especially in the light of consumer protection of tourists and travellers. Furthermore, one of the key objectives of the course is a comparative analysis of the legal protection of hoteliers in the growingly complex contractual relations with national and international tourist agencies. Students will further develop their knowledge of consumer protection rights and EU citizens' rights and freedoms through topics that resonate with their chosen module and program. Students will be introduced to EU transport law and infrastructure financing law. By combining the EU law components of transport law and tourism law, students will be able to get a holistic view of European consumer protection of tourists and travellers.
